Life Risk Intensive

Programme 2

€ 1,100 | 6 one-hour sessions | online | valid for 2 months

Develops deep understanding of how the nine risks interact and compound, giving men a map of their personal risk patterns and drivers.

Building directly on the capacity to recognise risk, this intensive stage develops a structured understanding of how the nine major life risks operate, interact, and compound over time. Participants move beyond surface identification into a systematic examination of personal patterns, triggers, and the mechanisms that keep destructive cycles alive. The focus is on mapping the relationships between alcohol, drugs, gambling, sex and lust, crime, toxic people, mob influence, falsity, and immorality in the individual's actual history and present circumstances.

Men learn to trace how one risk often amplifies another, how internal justifications form, and how external pressures reinforce internal weaknesses. The work produces a coherent picture of personal risk architecture rather than isolated problems. This understanding is practical and insightful: it reveals leverage points, hidden costs, and the progressive nature of unchecked risk.

Participants gain the understanding and emotional clarity needed to stop treating symptoms in isolation and instead address the underlying system. The stage is rigorous, requiring honesty and attention. It equips men with a working model of their own risk landscape so that later intervention can be targeted rather than generic. By completing this dimension, participants stand on firm ground: they not only see the risks but comprehend how those risks function in their specific lives.
